Stoelzle Flaconnage UK Celebrates 30 Years of Excellence

United Kingdom – This September marks a significant milestone for Stoelzle Glass Group, as the company proudly celebrates 30 years of glass-making at its Knottingley facility in the UK. Since joining the Stoelzle Glass Group in 1994, the Knottingley site has become a leader in premium spirits packaging, recognized for both its craftsmanship and cutting-edge technology.

Dr. August Grupp, CEO of Stoelzle Spirits, commented on the celebration:

"This 30-year milestone is a proud moment for Stoelzle Flaconnage. We're celebrating not only our innovations and technological advancements but also the deep, long-standing relationships we've built with both our dedicated employees and valued customers. Their passion, trust, and collaboration have been vital to our success. As we look ahead, we are excited to continue growing together, fostering a culture of excellence and partnership that will drive our future achievements."

Design, Decoration, and More

From the start, Stoelzle Flaconnage invested heavily in modernizing and expanding its production capabilities. These efforts began with the installation of a new furnace and the construction of a state-of-the-art customer center and mould shop. In 2016, a major furnace upgrade further enhanced production capacity, allowing the facility to meet growing global demand. Recent investments in advanced decoration and packaging capabilities have kept Stoelzle at the forefront of innovation in glass manufacturing, enhancing the company's ability to deliver premium solutions for spirits brands worldwide.

Beyond glass production, Stoelzle Flaconnage offers comprehensive design services through its in-house UK design team, helping brands turn their creative visions into reality. From bespoke bottles for limited-edition spirits to large-scale production, the company's glass containers have become synonymous with quality and innovation. Stoelzle has also embraced sustainability, offering lightweight glass bottles that reduce environmental impact without compromising design integrity. These efforts have strengthened long-term relationships with clients, positioning Stoelzle as a trusted partner in the spirits industry.

It's a People Business

A key factor in Stoelzle Flaconnage's success has been its employees, many of whom have been with the company for decades.

Looking to the future, Stoelzle remains committed to being a top employer in the region, continuing to invest in both the community and the industry. The company aims to foster a supportive, inclusive work environment and create opportunities for local talent, while maintaining its reputation as a premier spirits glass supplier in the UK and worldwide.
